PURPOSE:

The Making Opportunity Of Livestock At Hiwassee (MOOLAH) program is designed to provide hands-on learning experience and support for agricultural and pre-veterinary students at Hiwassee College. This support is provided through generous donations of livestock to the college. Although primarily designed to receive gifts of cattle, the program will consider donations of livestock of any type.

THREE WAYS TO GIVE:

Donations of livestock may be made to Hiwassee in three ways: 1) Donate an animal directly to the school, or 2) designate the proceeds from an animal at auction to go to Hiwassee., and finally 3) donate agricultural equipment to the college.

Livestock donated directly to the school will be used by agricultural and veterinary students in a “hands-on” learning atmosphere where they will learn to feed, care, grow and treat the animal on the campus farm. It is preferred that young animals be donated this way so that students may benefit from overseeing and nurturing the animal through its growth development. Once livestock reaches maturity, it may be sold and the proceeds used to benefit the program.

Another way to support the MOOLAH program is to donate an animal at auction. Participants designate the proceeds from the sale of a particular animal to be directed to Hiwassee College. The auctioneer makes note of this designation as he begins the auction. This provides publicity for the program thereby encouraging others to participate and hopefully driving up the final auction price. The auction house then pays the funds from the sale directly to the college, including the name and contact information of the donor. Once funds are received by the college, Hiwassee provides a gift acknowledgement and receipt to the donor and the funds are used to provide support for agricultural and veterinary students and programs.

Lastly, Hiwassee is always in need of new or used agricultural equipment. Everything from gates, chutes, hay wagons and tractors are needed at the college
